Promotes the Understanding and Prevention of Suicide and Supports Those Impacted by it through Today's Evidenced Based Best Practices

Who does the American Association of Suicidology serve?

American Association of Suicidology (AAS) is a membership organization for those involved in suicide prevention and intervention, or touched by suicide.

AAS is a leader in the advancement of scientific and programmatic efforts in suicide prevention through research, education and training, the development of standards and resources, and survivor support services.
ACCREDITATION, TRAINING & CERTIFICATION

The American Association of Suicidology (AAS) is a world-leader in the development, implementation, and facilitation of accreditation, certification, and training programs. Our programs are evidenced-based and best practices to uphold standards of care for those impacted by suicide.

JOURNAL

The Suicide and Life-Threatening Behavior Journal keeps professionals abreast of the latest research, theories, and intervention approaches for suicide and life-threatening behaviors. Issues examine such topics as risk factors for suicide in particular populations, assessment and risk-management approaches, advances in evidence-based prevention, methodological and ethical issues in intervention research, cross-cultural and international findings, and mental health needs of those bereaved by suicide.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The American Association of Suicidology's Annual Conference is the largest gathering of the Suicidology community; including clinicians, researchers, attempt survivors, crisis service professionals, public health and government officials and various other industry leaders.

MEMBERSHIP

Membership provides you with member benefits, discounts, and access to today's leaders in the field. While simultaneously supporting the mission of AAS which is to promote the understanding and prevention of suicide and support those who have been affected by it.

info@suicidology.org  suicidology.org  888-9-PREVENT